1. Two different systems for loading coal are in use in the Szczecin (Stettin) harbor. One is the conveyor belt (tasmowiec) system and the other the dump truck (wywrotnica) system. Neither system works well, but the dump truck system which has been in use since 1952, is nearly always out of order. The regime has decided to take down this equipment and send it to the Nowa Huta foundry in Krakow for repair and alteration. 25X1
2. In order to hinder foreign radio broadcast reception, many jamming stations have been set up in Poland, not only by the civilian regime but by Polish and Soviet military units as well. In Wroclaw (Breslau) and the surrounding area there are a number of jamming stations which are operated by Soviet soldiers. 25X1
